

SCENE 13 • NUMBER 7

Vyras prie trečio stalo

Early morning in the café. At the same minute every day, a neat man in a blue shirt comes in and walks to the table by the window. Rūta nods at him and whispers. His usual order is tea without sugar, one bread roll and the bill. You copy that order exactly; coffee is mentioned only while asking about the menu prices.

Translation

Rūta nods at the man walking to the window table and says it quietly.

- Look: table number three. That gentleman is here every morning.

○ And table number one?

She winks.

- In your kitchen.

He checks under the table, sits down and orders without a look at the menu.

- ▲ One tea without sugar, one roll and the bill, please.

- Yes, sir.

○ Can I have the menu?

- Here you are. The prices are here, at the bottom.

You stare at the long menu.

○ Sorry, I don't understand. How much is a coffee?

- Coffee is two thirty. Tea one forty, a roll one twenty, cake three fifty.

○ All right. I'd like to order.

You try to sound exactly like him.

○ One tea without sugar, one roll and the bill, please.

She laughs.

■ The bill? Already? You don't have anything yet!

■ Oh, all right. Tea and a roll: two sixty.

Micius jumps onto the man's table and grabs his pen.

▲ A cat! No, no, no!

He climbs up onto his chair.

▲ The bill! Quickly, please!

■ Two sixty, sir.

He drops the exact money on the table and hurries to the door.

▲ Here's the money. Goodbye!

■ He's very, very afraid of cats.

○ What's his name?

■ I don't know. "Tea without sugar": that's his name.

Under the table, Micius is playing with the pen.

○ And his pen?

■ The pen? It's Micius's now.

Under table 3, Micius lies on his back with the pen between his paws. On the table: the exact money, to the cent.
