Background and actions in progress

Waktu or ketika can mean when: Waktu konser mulai, saya di bangku. The verb stays unchanged in both parts.

Sedang marks an action in progress at the time being discussed: Bu Sari sedang tidur waktu itu. It can apply to now or a past scene; it is not itself a past tense.

Saya tidak tidur denies sleeping. Hanya menutup mata means only closing eyes. Tidak negates a verb; bukan rejects a noun identity, and belum says not yet.
