

SCENE 31 • NUMBER 7

Ota sateenvarjo

Tuesday, a bright, warm morning. You come down in a T-shirt. Aino stands at the door with an umbrella. "You must take it." Nöpö doesn't want to go out, and that means rain: the best forecast in town. Sanna says Aino is always right. Almost always.

Translation

■ Good morning. Where are you going without an umbrella?

○ To work. It's lovely! Sunshine, twenty degrees.

■ Take your umbrella today.

○ But there are no clouds. No wind either!

■ Nöpö stays indoors. That means rain.

○ Nöpö is your weather forecast?

■ Exactly. He's almost always right.

○ Thank you. But I don't need an umbrella today.

Outside, Sanna is putting the café tables out on the pavement.

▲ Good morning! It's hot today.

○ Yes. But Aino says: take your umbrella.

▲ Aino is always right. Almost always. Where is Nöpö?

○ He's at home today.

▲ Then you need an umbrella.

Nöpö sits on the windowsill, perfectly dry, looking at the sky.

Half past five. You come home soaked to the skin. Aino is already at the door with a towel.

○ You were right. It's raining. I'm completely wet.

■ I can see that. Here is a towel.

○ Thank you. Tomorrow I'll take the umbrella.

■ You don't need it tomorrow. There will be sunshine.

○ How do you know?

■ Nöppö.

You don't take it. At half past five you come home soaked, and she is at the door with a towel. "I know." Tomorrow: sun, says Nöppö. Next morning you take the umbrella, and the sun shines. Nöppö follows you all the way to the office.
