Translation

On the way back, the Saturday market on the square. Liene has a big basket.

■ Here's the market. It's open every Saturday, from seven until one.

■ I'm buying ten kilos of apples for the café.

○ Ten kilos? That's a lot!

■ It's for the cakes. And what are you buying?

○ I have a list. For dinner.

A farm stall with vegetables, cheese and milk.

▲ Good morning! What would you like?

○ I'd like a kilo of tomatoes and two kilos of potatoes, please.

▲ Here you are. Anything else?

○ Yes, half a kilo of cheese and a bottle of milk.

▲ Is that all? Then it's twelve fifty.

The fish seller waves you over to his stall.

● Good morning! You're from number 7?

○ Yes. How do you know?

- There are Muris's hairs on your jacket. And Muris comes here every Saturday.

○ Muris isn't my cat.

He unrolls a very long bill.

- But he lives at number 7, right? So here's his bill for the whole month.

○ So much fish! How much is it?

- Forty-two euros.

Liene laughs and takes out her purse.

- Never mind. I'll pay. Every month.

○ Every month? Why you?

- Because Muris sits in my café window every morning. And people come in to look at him.

The fish seller stops you. "Number 7? Here is Muris's bill for the whole month." A very long bill, 42 euros. Liene laughs and pays. "Every month." Muris sits in her window every morning, and people come in to look at him.
