Translation

Friday evening. After the first festival rehearsal on the market square, where you helped set up the café stall in a storm, you come up the stairs, dripping.

- You're wet again!
- There's a storm outside. My clothes are wet, my shoes too.

- And where's your umbrella?
- At the office. In the morning it was sunny.

- In the morning it's always sunny.

- And the yellow jacket?
- Wet too. It's warm, but it isn't a raincoat.

- A jacket is for the cold, not for the rain. You need a raincoat.

She goes to the cupboard on the landing and comes back with an old green raincoat.

- Wait.
- My old raincoat. Put it on.
- It's dry! And very warm.
- It suits you. Better than the yellow jacket.

○ Thank you. How old is it?

■ Forty. It's older than you.

Something heavy is in the pocket.

○ What's this in the pocket? A key. Old and heavy.

You read the old paper label on it.

○ 'Attic.' The attic key?

■ Keep it.

○ Why me?

■ Because you're one of number 7 now.

○ And what's in the attic?

■ Old things. Lots of old things.

You sneeze.

○ Atishoo!

■ There you go. Tea and bed. Now!

○ But tomorrow there's a rehearsal...

■ Tomorrow you must stay in bed. All day.

○ Yes, Mrs De Vries.

- And now I'll bring you some tea.

Mevrouw De Vries brings an old green raincoat from the cupboard. "My old raincoat. Put it on. It suits you." In the pocket is a heavy old key with a label: "Attic". "Keep it. You are one of number 7 now." You sneeze. In bed with your tea, you see Max sitting by the key, staring at it for a long time.
