

SCENE 13 • NUMBER 7

Der Mann an Tisch drei

Early morning in the café. At the same minute every day, a neat man in a blue shirt comes in and walks to the table by the window. Greta nods at him and whispers. His usual order is tea without sugar, one bread roll and the bill. You copy that order exactly; coffee is mentioned only while asking about the menu prices.

Translation

■ Do you see the man at table three? He comes every morning.

○ And table one?

■ That one is in your kitchen now.

The man in the blue shirt looks under the table by the window.

▲ A tea without sugar. A bread roll and the bill, please.

■ Yes, of course.

○ Can I have the menu, please?

■ Of course. The prices are down here.

○ How much does a coffee cost?

■ Three euros twenty. Tea costs one euro forty, a roll one euro twenty and cake three euros fifty.

○ Good. I would like to order now.

○ A tea without sugar. A bread roll and the bill, please.

■ The bill already? But you do not have anything yet!

■ All right. Tea and a roll cost two euros sixty together.

Mikesch lands on the table and grabs the pen. The man jerks back.

▲ A cat! Please, no!

The man stands on his chair. Mikesch sits on the table with the pen.

▲ The bill! Quickly, please!

■ Two euros sixty, please.

The man hurries out. A stack of coins lies on the table.

▲ Here. Thank you. Goodbye!

■ He is afraid of cats.

○ What is his name?

■ To me he is called Tea without sugar.

○ And his pen?

■ Mikesch has that now.

Under table 3, Mikesch lies on his back with the pen between his paws. On the table: the exact money, to the cent.
