

SCENE 31 • NUMBER 7

Deštník

Tuesday, a bright, warm morning. You come down in a T-shirt. Marie stands at the door with an umbrella. "You must take it." Mourek doesn't want to go out, and that means rain: the best forecast in town. Petra says Marie is always right. Almost always.

Translation

- Good morning. Where are you going without an umbrella?
- To work. Look what lovely weather! Sun, twenty-five degrees.
- Today you must take an umbrella.
- An umbrella? But there are no clouds! And no wind.
- Mourek doesn't want to go outside today. That means rain.
- The cat is a weather forecast?
- The best forecast in town.
- Thanks, but I don't need an umbrella.
- As you like.

Outside, Petra is putting the café tables out on the pavement.

- ▲ Good morning! It's hot today, isn't it?
- Very hot! And Mrs Nováková says I need an umbrella.
- ▲ Marie is always right. Well, almost always.
- ▲ And where's Mourek? Every morning he sits in my window.
- Today he's at home.
- ▲ Oh. Then take an umbrella.

Mourek sits on the windowsill, perfectly dry, looking at the sky.

Half past five. You come home soaked to the skin. Marie is already at the door with a towel.

☐ Mrs Nováková... you were right.

☒ I know. Here's a towel.

☐ Thank you. Tomorrow I'm taking the umbrella.

☒ Tomorrow you don't need it. Tomorrow it's sunny.

☐ Who says so?

☒ Mourek.

You don't take it. At half past five you come home soaked, and she is at the door with a towel. "I know." Tomorrow: sun, says Mourek. Next morning you take the umbrella, and the sun shines. Mourek follows you all the way to the office.
