Translation

She holds up a pen and a printed form.

■ Good morning. May I come in for a moment?

○ Hello, Ms Choi. Yes, come in.

■ Here is a form. Every new neighbour fills it in.

○ A form? Already?

■ Yes. There are just a few questions. It will be quick.

She reads out the whole form in one breath.

■ What is your name? Your surname? Your nationality? Which languages do you speak? Your job?

○ Sorry. I do not quite understand. Please speak slowly.

Now she speaks very, very slowly.

■ All right. Very slowly. What is your surname?

○ It is Becker.

■ How do you write it? Please spell it.

☐ B, E, C, K, E, R.

■ Please say it again. Slowly.

☐ B... E... C... K... E... R.

■ Where is your hometown?

☐ It is Hamburg.

She is delighted, and talks even faster.

■ Which languages do you speak?

☐ I speak German. I speak a little Korean too.

■ Korean! Very good! Now we can talk.

☐ But please speak slowly. You speak very fast.

■ What do you do for work?

☐ I work at a company. I am an engineer.

■ An engineer. Yes, I already know.

From her cardigan pocket she takes a small brass name plate for your letterbox.

■ Here is the sign for your letterbox.

- ☐ Becker. Correct! You really do know everything.
- ☐ Then why do you need the form?

She holds out a small brass name plate for your letterbox. Your surname is on it, already spelled right. The form under her arm is still empty.
