Café requests and choosing

At a café, a short request is natural: A coffee, please. Although coffee is normally uncountable, a coffee means a serving or cup. A piece of cake names a countable portion.

Use and to join things and or for a choice: coffee and cake, coffee or tea? Add please when asking and thank you after receiving something.

I'd like a coffee is a useful polite request. Learn I'd like as a whole phrase now; use the whole phrase for a courteous request. It means what you want, while I like coffee states a general preference.
