Translation

It is the morning of the festival. Mali and the learner go to the gift shop.

■ Hello. Going to the festival?

☐ Yes. Non will play this evening.

■ Non as a child? Come in. I have a story to tell.

Sai sits down and takes off her glasses.

■ I've known Non a long time. He was ten then.

■ Have you seen the photo? The one with the window and the trumpet.

☐ Yes. His hair looked very funny.

▲ Did he live at house number seven then?

■ Yes. He lived with his parents in the room where you live now.

▲ I know. That's Non's room.

■ His parents worked a lot. Non was often alone.

☐ And the trumpet? Where did he get it from?

■ Khun Yai Somporn gave it to him. It was small and old.

☐ Grandma's trumpet?

■ Yes. Why she had it, I don't know. Grandma knows everything.

■ Every day, Non played under the shop window.

■ At first, he still wasn't good, and he was very loud.

▲ And you listened every day?

■ Yes. I worked here.

■ Later, he played well, and then there was a festival too.

○ Did he play at the festival?

■ Yes. In the square with the band. It was his first time.

■ There were so many people. Non was afraid.

■ He played a different song from the band.

■ Then it rained, and people went home.

■ Non wanted to go home too. His clothes were completely wet.

○ And where was Grandma?

■ She was in front of the stage, and she had an umbrella too.

● Yes. That day I sang too.

■ Then Non played again. It was the same song, but it was really very good.

▲ And the rain?

■ The rain stopped, and people came back.

■ Everyone listened, and then everyone sang.

○ And did you sing too?

■ Of course. Khun Yai Somporn sang too.

▲ Did Non's parents come too?

■ They came late, but they heard the last song.

■ After that, they bought him a big trumpet as a gift.

○ And the little trumpet?

■ Maybe it's at Khun Yai Somporn's house. Who knows?

○ Grandma knows. Grandma knows everything.

▲ Will you come with us this evening?

■ Yes. I'll sit beside Grandma, and I'll bring an umbrella too.

☐ And we will sing too.
